(ICJ-417) Why Compassion Must be the Foundation of All Reasonable Efforts to Reunify Children. Iowa Children's Justice. This session will explore the role that compassion must play in all efforts to reunify children with their families in the child welfare system. Attendees will hear about evidence suggesting that the child welfare system has a crisis in compassion that must be addressed. Then they will learn about the strong evidence - primarily from other fields - about the role compassion plays in helping people address the challenges in their lives. Finally, they will gain specific techniques about how to practice compassion in their representation of families. Speakers include Vivek Sankaran (Child Advocacy Law Clinic, University of Michigan Law School), Amelia Franck Meyer (Alia), and Shrounda Selivanoff (Washington State Office of Public Defense). Hosted and recorded by Michigan State Court Administrative Office – Child Welfare Services on June 24, 2020.
